

CityAir

Air-quality readiness & innovation exchange

The independent evidence quality technology in cities

CityAir assesses how ready a city actually is to use air-quality technology — and publishes implementation briefs that show what works, what doesn't, and what must be monitored. We do not sell sensors.

SIX WAYS TO WORK WITH US

1 • City pilot

You supply hardware or connectivity for one district; we supply the readiness baseline, the indicator set and the published result.

2 • Data

Your open city's assessment answers.

3 • Co-authored innovation brief

One product, one honest limitation, one reference deployment — published with full attribution in our open library.

4 • Sponsor

Fund an assessment and never see the result.

5 • Capacity building

Joint trilingual webinars and municipal workshops on evidence quality, procurement and risk communication.

6 • Independent

Six-month uptime, data vendor can't delete.

WHAT WE ASK FOR — AND WHAT YOU GET

One pilot city, 3–6 sensor nodes, 6 months, one agreed indicator set

A documented data schema with a named owner and an update cycle

Permission to publish the result, whatever it shows

Written conflict-of-interest clause for funding

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS WE CAN SIGN THIS WEEK

Pilot

Hardware or connectivity for one district in exchange for a published six-month result.

One product implemented

Evaluation

Fund an independent before/after evaluation and accept publication of the outcome.

Find us at the fair: walk the smart-city and smart-building halls with the CityAir company table - stands for the person who owns the municipal account and the data.
